Williamsville Student Shines in Video Production and Recording Arts Program

Williamsville High School student Brady Shaughnessy is excelling in the Video Production and Recording Arts program at the Calspan Career and Technical Education Center.

The program allows students to gain experience with cutting edge technology to create and produce their own original films and music. The students' work is supported by the guidance of industry professionals.

Brady's program instructor, Marc Hunt praised his dedication and enthusiasm toward his studies.

"Brady is a hard-working student who is very motivated to be successful in an audio production career," Hunt said. "He brings positive energy to the class and is also a talented musician."

With his passion for music and production, Brady is making the most of this hands-on program, positioning himself for a promising future in the audio and video production industry.

Erie 1 BOCES Shared Services

The New York State Legislature created Boards of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) as a way for local school districts to collaborate on educational offerings while reducing their individual expenses. Today, Erie 1 BOCES is an incubator of innovation, continually developing new programs and services to meet the changing needs of students. The following is a report that provides insight into Williamsville's enrollment during this school year.

Supporting Pilots and Innovative Projects

Erie 1 BOCES Technology Integration Coordinator, Sean Christopher, brings his expertise to Williamsville's elementary classrooms through STEAM instruction as part of the Pilots and Innovative Projects Program. For a week at each school, he works with every student in grades K-4, showing them how to integrate play with learning through coding software. Learning to code at an early age builds problem solving, creativity, and critical thinking skills, while preparing students for future careers in technology and innovation. Fourth graders also gain hands-on experience with 3D design and printing, introducing them to engineering and graphic design. Sean has been collaborating with Williamsville teachers for the past five years and looks forward to his week in the district each year.
